

Hello and welcome families!

My name is Nicholas Maddocks, and I am very excited to be a part of the teaching team here at Tracy Independent Study Charter School. A little bit about myself: I have taught for a few years as a substitute teacher for various school districts including, but not limited to Stanislaus County, Patterson, Manteca, Ripon, Ceres, Turlock, Tracy, and various other sites across California. During the 2020-2021 school year, I served as a paraeducator for Orange County in which I had taught kindergarten, third, and sixth grade for that year.

Prior to my teaching experience, I have studied and received my multiple subject teaching credential through California State University, Stanislaus and have received my bachelor's degree at the University of California, Merced in world history. I specialize in a variety of different subject areas and I overall love teaching and working with children to help them succeed in, not only school, but also instilling life skills that will help them in the future.

I am honored to be serving at Tracy Independent Charter and I am very happy to be here. I currently reside in Modesto, with my family. So far, I have enjoyed working with each of my students, learning more about them, and helping them through the school year and I hope to continue to do so for the future.
